

CAIRNGORM WILD MOUNTAIN GARDEN

The Wild Mountain Garden sits at 650m above sea level and is, we believe, one of the highest tended gardens in the UK.

Located just above the Base Station at the Coire Cas car park it is home to some of the rarest & endangered plant species in the UK.

Much of the original re planting work Cairngorm Staff with help of the Royal Botanical Gardens, Local School Children, Action for Mountain Woodlands and since 2006 the garden has benefited greatly by the work of resident gardener.

The garden showcases the plants found in the surrounding mountains and to see similar habitats you would have to travel over two thousand miles north to Arctic Norway

The Wild Mountain Garden has recreated these habitat zones for your easy enjoyment. Visitors of all abilities and ages can now experience the native plants of this mountain range within the garden itself.

Throughout the summer months volunteer gardeners tend the plants and they are available and happy to answer your questions or show you around.

Check out gallery on Cairngorm Flickr and view many of the species that can be seen in the mountain garden.
